

KEY POINT

Putdowns are a way of saying, “I am better than you, richer than you, smarter than you, and your position in this setting is lower than mine.” They are part of the culture in most countries. Most conflicts start with one person putting down another. Compliments and appreciations can be learned and practiced in order to change the habit of using putdowns and encouraging a more nurturing environment.